Vision for excellence in school culture

Richard J. Wilson's school culture vision of excellence revolves around the idea that we will create meaningful learning opportunities for all students. Learning opportunities will be provided by engaging students in everyday conversations, making connections with real-world issues and coaching them through problem-solving issues. Through careful lesson planning and preparation the school community will model for students how to be respectful and conscientious individuals who transform into contributing members of society. Planned experiences will provide rigor for our students in all academic and social areas. As a community of learners, we will see student evidence of mastery when students are able to communicate their needs, ideas and goals in social-emotional and academic areas of their lives.
